THE CONGRESS.

Kansas Shows Her Gory Wounds at Ogden.

At the Trans-Mississippi Organization.

The Congress Is for Free Silver But Not for a Silver Party.

Patterson, of the Rocky Mountain News, Scores the Present Financial System.

OGDEN, Utah, April 26.—[Associated Press.]—The committee on permanent organization of the Trans-Mississippi Congress presented a list of vice-presidents from various states, among which were Wm. Johnson, California; W. A. Cheney, Ariz. Kansas promptly came to the front with a domestic fight. J. W. Ady had been named as vice-president from Kansas, and Congressman Todd protested and wanted the name of Governor Llewellyn substituted. A. W. Stubbs objected to the name of J. W. Ady being taken down to make room for an "accident governor." John H. Lizzor of Oklahoma objected also to the "accident governor," who thought 58 was a majority of 125 in the legislature. Congressman Todd arose white with rage and denounced the insult to the governor of Kansas as coming from representatives of a territory which was settled by the refuse of the universe.

Peyton of Utah suggested that the Kansas militia be called out at once. Murphy of Montana protested that bleeding Kansas should not bring her wounds and sores here to be paraded before the congress. D. A. Clark of Iowa said that if he had known that he was coming one thousand miles to hear a discussion of Kansas politics he would have stayed at home. Governor Waite of Colorado voiced the opinion that the congress should not be called in to settle a question which was purely political. Johnson of California proposed that the Kansas delegation be locked up in a room until they agreed on a vice president.

The majority report was adopted. A recess was then taken until 2 o'clock p. m. At the afternoon session Smith announced that everything was lovely in the Kansas delegation, and that Llewellyn would be the vice-president from Kansas and Ady the member of the executive committee. The announcement was received with cheers.

At the afternoon session Secretary C. W. Crawford of Nebraska read an address on water power and irrigation and the great importance they had played in the development and growth of Nebraska and the west. Governor McConnell was installed president of the congress, and in his address begged the members to bear in mind that this congress was called to further the commercial interests of the west and not of any political party, while it was practically unanimous for free silver it was not backing up the so-called silver party.

Resolutions on transportation were introduced, and among them the following classification of railway lands: Relief of the deep water harbor at Galveston, Missouri river improvement, Nicaragua canal, and other matters of minor importance. It was expected that a fight on the location of the next congress would ensue. San Francisco and Dallas, Texas, were bidding for the plum. San Francisco was finally chosen unanimously, but the date was left to be fixed by the executive committee.

Julian Sledge of San Francisco was chosen secretary. Col. W. H. Harvey having declined. Each trans-Mississippi state was authorized to appoint a member of the executive committee.

This evening a large and distinguished gathering greeted Col. Patterson of the Rocky Mountain News at Denver, who spoke on the free coinage of silver. Among other things he said: "While there may be no more metals who never gold, they will not defend the Sherman law of '73. That enactment which went at one fell blow from under our credit system over one-half of the metal foundation was a crime, and purchased by the infamy of more than one senator. All afflictions pale into insignificance when compared with the dire results of this crime, and the authorities at Washington even now are considering the issuance of 4 per cent. bonds that we may feed the Shylocks of England on the gold, yet in the treasury there are $3,000,000,000 of silver which could be used, yet the treasurer refuses to use the discretion granted him by law. I predict that if the silver coinage law is restored to our statutes, silver will within 90 days be restored to its proper place. Thank God, the president is not this country's sovereign or ruler. He may be forced to yield to the demands of the people. This congress is potent to do. Do not falter, do not compromise. There is no compromise. It is either coinage of silver or thrall-dom; financial disaster and misery."

Senator Stewart will speak tomorrow evening.

WON AND LOST A FORTUNE.

Billy Dice, a Monte Carlo Gambler, Coming West Broken in Health.

CHICAGO, April, 26.—[Associated Press.]—Billy Dice, is the man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo, and now he's broke, or rather he would be had not friends come to his relief. Mr. Dice landed in New York a year ago with $500,000 in his clothes, the proceeds of his gaming. This week he left New York with money provided by his friends—a wreck physically as well as financially. The past year has been a disastrous one for Mr. Dice. Although provided with plenty of money when he opened, he saw it diminish by the thousands, and slowly but surely the ravages of consumption were destroying his health.

At last, after his money had gone and his disease had developed beyond cure, his friends came to his relief and provided money to take him to Denver, in the hope that the change would prove beneficial. He arrived at the Auditorium today on his way to the Colorado city. He said his winnings abroad were not all at Monte Carlo, neither did he break the bank, but it was precisely near the verge. Considerable of his winnings were from the American-Franco Bank. He says he has had offers to appear in variety shows, but his health will not permit it.

WASHINGTON.

Minister Egan will Return at Once.

After a Mature Cabinet Deliberation the Proposition of the New York Bankers is Rejected.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—[Associated Press.]—The Chilean incident is closed and Minister Egan is coming home. The state department rebuked him for his action in sheltering refugees. Fuentes and Holly and the Chileans are incensed with him because of his alleged connivance at their escape, when instructed to harbor them in the legation no longer. He gave them an asylum as political refugees, but was informed by the department that they were not entitled to protection on that ground. When he turned them out in obedience to instructions, Holly escaped, but Fuentes was captured by a guard that surrounded the legation. Judge Porter, who succeeds Mr. Egan as minister to Chili, will start for Santiago, May 20th, but Mr. Egan, it is said, will not await his arrival, but will start for home in a few days, leaving Secretary McCreery in charge of the legation.

The president has decided not to accept the resignation of the delegates to a international monetary conference. The commission will, therefore, remain unchanged, unless some members decide to serve. The conference will meet May 20th and the question of a further postponement will rest entirely with its members.

GONE WITH A MAN.

A Boarding House Keeper Elopes With a Lodger.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 26.—[Associated Press.]—Alger 18 years of married life Mrs. Francis Glick, who has kept a boarding house at 207 South Fifth street for some time, is said to have eloped with one of her boarders, a Mr. Brown, and left Mr. Glick the most miserable of men.

Up to three months ago Mr. Glick, who is a boat builder, never had cause for jealousy of his stately, dark-eyed, handsome wife. About that time she seemed to become attentive to a young man who was working at a harness-maker's blacksmith shop, but later changed to a new arrival at the boarding house. The first of last week Mr. Glick went to Port Orchard on business and when he returned on Wednesday found that his wife had sold all the furniture, closed the house and gone to Victoria. As near as Mr. Glick could find out Mr. Brown, the new lodger, was the Lethario, and Victoria was the destination. He reported the matter to Captain Sims last night, and, as he told of his misfortunes, he sighed in a heart-rending manner. He is anxious to find his spouse, and proposes to go to Victoria under full sail with his new sloop, now building on the water front.

A BLEEDING PLANT.

Strange Phenomenon Recalling a Double Tragedy in Tennessee.

MILAN, Tenn., April 26.—[Associated Press.]—A special from Jackson Creek, Madison county, says that village is wonderfully excited over a curious phenomenon at the graveyard there. Two months since C. A. Lour of Tracy City, while visiting his sweetheart at that place, shot her through the heart and then killed himself, because she would not consent to marry him. Both were buried in the same grave.

Since the burial a strange plant has grown from the center of the grave. It is two feet in height, covered with flowers of a snow white color, which constantly drop a bright red fluid.

A sickening odor is emitted which overcomes all who inhale it. The fluid has been subjected to a chemical analysis by Dr. Hallis, who pronounced it to be identical with human blood.

The truth of the above is vouched for by any citizen of Jack's Creek.

THE OPENING.

The President Will Press the Magic Button

Which Will Set the World's Fair in Motion.

All Things Ready for the Great Event Next Monday.

The National Commissioners Will Again Consider the Sunday Question.

CHICAGO, April 26.—[Associated Press.]—Steam today was turned into the cylinders of the mammoth engines at the world's fair that are to furnish the power which President Cleveland will next Monday press into activity at the touch of a button. The performance of the engines is decided to be perfect. Except for a few details, the plans for opening the exposition are now settled, promising a simple but majestic spectacle. All the machinery will start into motion when the button is pressed by the president. Thousands of yards of hunting will be released to float in air, and a grand salute of artillery will be fired. Then President Cleveland will go to the Manufacturers building, where he will receive the commissioners of the foreign nations.

Gov. Altgeld today issued a proclamation setting forth that, in consideration of the national and international character of the exposition and the great event of which it is commemorative, the opening day shall be a legal holiday within the limits of this commonwealth.

This afternoon the World's Fair National commission assembled for the final session of its final meeting. Sunday opening was the subject of discussion before them, but no discussion or action was indulged in, today's gathering being merely formal. It is not the intention of the commission to originate a discussion of the Sunday question themselves, but it is expected the matter will come up in the form of a fresh resolution from the local directory.

Burglars Wanted the Craven Jewels.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Mr. Bradley-Martin's house was burglarized last night of several antique watches valued at $3,000. The burglars also packed off about $5,000 worth of silverware and ransacked the house searching for two valuable diamond necklaces presented to Miss Bradley-Martin at her marriage to the Earl of Craven. The necklaces, however, were locked in a safe in the room of Mrs. Bradley-Martin.

The Bankers Proposition Rejected.

WASHINGTON, April, 26.—At the cabinet meeting this afternoon, Secretary Carlisle brought up the proposition of New York bankers to supply under certain considerations the treasury department with gold. It was very thoroughly discussed and finally rejected. It was not considered advantageous to the government.

WHIPPED BY FIVE GIRLS.

A New Jersey Youth Dragged From Bed.

A Severe Penalty Inflicted for Insulting a Girl to Whom He Was Engaged to Be Married.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., April 26.—[Associated Press.]—Five stout maidens, with hearts burning with indignation took a youth out of his bed last night on the farm of Henry A. Johnson near Vineland and horse-whipped him. Their victim was Archibald Keller, about 20 years old, who is visiting Mr. Keller, near Mr. Johnson's farm lives Mrs. Carment, a widow, who has an attractive daughter, Annie Carment. Keller met the girl last summer while spending his vacation on the farm. The two became engaged to be married.

Last Sunday Keller brought Miss Carment to this city. He took her to a house under the pretense that he wanted to introduce her to a friend. When in the house he made improper proposals to her, which she repulsed and then fled. Keller threatened to declare that he had accomplished his purpose if the girl told her mother. Notwithstanding his threat she told Mrs. Carment, who at once accused Keller of his rascality. He in turn circulated stories against the girl.

Miss Carment had no father nor brother to defend her and a number of friends volunteered to help punish the man. Miss Carment with four companions called at the Johnson home late last night. Annie threw pebbles at the window of the room in which Keller slept. He made his appearance and upon seeing the girl came down to the yard. When he stepped outdoors he was seized by the five girls, who held him to a fence and whipped him until he screamed for help. The girls left him when farmer Johnson made his appearance in response to Keller's cries. The farmers in that vicinity were intensely excited over the affair when they heard of the facts and Keller has fled to escape further violence.
